On June 21, 2018, Professor Oguzhan Alagoz, Associate Director of WIHSE and faculty in the Department of Industrial and Systems Engineering at UW-Madison, participated in the College of Engineering-sponsored Forum for Manufacturers in Neenah, Wisconsin. Prof. Alagoz summarized the work of WIHSE faculty and researchers that focuses on improving care processes, reducing patient deaths and healthcare costs by improving transitions, lowering patient wait times, and reducing healthcare-associated infections through the use of healthcare systems engineering methods and tools.

WIHSE Industry Consortium

WIHSE is launching an industry consortium to engage with external stakeholders, including healthcare delivery organizations, healthcare technology companies, health insurance providers and many others that are interested in transforming health care through engineering. If you are interested in learning more about the consortium, please contact Professor Pascale Carayon (pcarayon@wisc.edu) or WIHSE (WIHSE@engr.wisc.edu).
